Threat-i is a Cyber Threat Intelligence Platform which is a information technology discipline that helps organizations aggregate, correlate, and analyse Cyber Security threat data from multiple sources in real time to support defensive actions. Threat-i makes it possible for organizations to gain an advantage over the adversary by detecting the presence of threat actors, blocking and tackling their attacks, or degrading their Information Technology systems infrastructure. Using Threat-i, businesses and government agencies can also identify the Cyber Security threat sources and data that are the most useful and relevant to their own environment, potentially reducing the costs.
